

The Mutant Chronicles

By the end of the 23rd Century, famine, plague, war, and death held the Earth in its grip. One that tightened under four monstrous corporations – Capitol, Bauhaus, Mishima, and Imperial – which dominated the Earth... or what was left of it.

What was once a green world was reduced to an inhospitable, polluted miasma. The four megacorporations decided to flee to the other inner planets. Using the last of their home-world's scant resources, massive terraforming vessels were constructed and dispatched to Mercury, Venus, Luna, and Mars. Soon, the surfaces of these barren rocks were made habitable.

Desperate to advance beyond all boundaries, the search for new worlds unleashed a horror that would curse humankind for all eternity. It is a prophecy foretold by The Brotherhood – a powerful religious organization whose influence and hope far eclipses any religion before it.

It is a prophecy that cannot fail.
